Family companion on a limited registration (no breeding rights)

A Showing animal with full registration (Showing/ breeding rights)

Breeder: Christy Brown

Your puppy is guaranteed free of genetic/congenital eye or hip problems

For 24 months from the date of birth as follows. The genetic/congenital problem must be one that affects the quality of life of the puppy/dog. If such problems resulting from this breeding occur during that time, The following must be provided to me in order to validate this warranty:

A) I must be notified immediately upon a veterinarian diagnosing there is a problem that affects the quality of life of your malamute.

B) Documentation (receipts or labels) that the malamute has been fed only good quality large breed puppy food until a minimum of six months, and thereafter, good quality large breed Dog food since purchase(As well as receipts for the qualifying vitamins listed below for the full 24 month period).This is necessary because large breed puppies are more inclined to exhibit development bone problems if not fed foods controlling calcium, phosphorus, and calorie levels in their diet which promotes good skeletal development. We also require that said puppy continue using NuVet Plus vitamins throughout this 24 month period, this is necessary for the proper development and health of said puppy. These vitamins can be purchased at a discount using our breeders code at <http://www.nuvet.com/35342> (make sure you use the code 35342).

C) Documentation that all series of shots, worming and other regular veterinarian treatments for your area (heartworm, ect.) have been received by your puppy when due. Also documentation on weight of your malamute at various stages of growth.(when you have a vet appt., They always weigh them and record it on your receipt.

This is to ensure your malamute has not been allowed to become overweight, causing any developmental problems.)

Qualifying examination: Your puppy will need to receive a vet exam within the first 48 hours of its arrival to ensure the puppy is healthy upon arrival. We do our best to assure your puppy is free of parasites and your puppy will receive a fecal test prior to being sent to his/her new home, however some parasites can not be detected at certain stages and therefore we do require that you quarantine your new puppy for the first 2 weeks of its arrival to assure it does not transfer a parasite to other pets. We will not cover any vet cost associated with the transfer of a parasite from one pet to another (No exceptions).

To the new owner(s): Please follow your veterinarians recommended vaccination schedule. We recommend feeding large breed puppy food for at least the first six months of age. And continuing with large breed dog food for the life of your malamute.

Life treating Illnesses: Browns Kennel offers no guarantee against illnesses or accidents not contracted on Browns Kennels premises, and takes no responsibility for vet bills. If the veterinarian examination reveals that the puppy/dog has a life treating illness, the buyer has an additional 48 hours to return the Alaskan malamute to Browns kennel (at their expense), along with a detailed written statement from the treating Veterinarian about the animal condition (if said puppy must be euthanized please provide vet documentation). And then said puppy will be replaced with one of equal value once replacement puppy is available.

Life treating Genetic defects: Brown's Kennels further agrees to guarantee the Alaskan malamute for genetic defects that would be life treating to the puppy/dog. The diagnosis must be made during the coverage period of 24 months of age. Brown's Kennel does not pay for any vet bills or travel expenses associated with diagnosis or return of puppy or replacement puppy. If buyer decides not to take a replacement puppy and elects to keep said puppy/dog it must be stated in writing and guarantee will be null and void.

Life treating Genetic defects:

Brown's Kennels further agrees to guarantee the Alaskan Malamute for life threatening genetic defects, However if the pup should die of this condition before the end of the second year, an autopsy is required. The examining veterinarian must send Brown's kennel all documents and proof of claim relating to this period.

Preventable Illness:

Brown's Kennels will not accept a claim for a preventable illness. Failure to vaccinate the Alaskan malamute in accordance with veterinary recommendations for standard practice voids this contract.

Claims:

Brown's Kennel reserves the right to evaluate all claims and reject those deemed invalid for reasons described above. If the claim is valid, Brown's kennel will then replace said puppy/dog with one of equal value when one becomes available.

Brown's Big Babies (Legal document)

Then the Alaskan malamute in question will be replaced with another animal of similar appearance and equal value becomes available (limited to the original purchase price paid) . If the replacement puppy/dog is offered and not taken, then the claim will be considered null and void from that point forward. All veterinary care is the responsibility of the owner.

This Guarantee is made by Brown's Kennel to the buyer. The buyer should not assume that any guarantee follows the dog in the event the buyer transfers ownership of the dog to another party, it does not.

After 48 hours if the guarantee applies, no money will be refunded and another "like" (limited to the original purchase price paid) pup will be given in its place.

Any claims as a result of this guarantee must be made within the 48 hour time period, or the 2 year time frame for congenital defects.

Any claims as a result of this guarantee must be accompanied by a veterinary statement and any other documentation required by Brown's Kennels.

The decision to replace will be at the sole discretion of Brown's kennels.

If the buyer elects to keep the pup/dog, no replacement will be issued and the owner shall be considered to have forfeited all claims.

No replacement will be made to any owner who has his/her dog destroyed or makes the dog unavailable for autopsy by a veterinarian acceptable to Brown's Kennels.

Replacement is limited to the original amount paid for a pup/dog. In the event the owner chooses a dog that is more expensive than the one being replaced, the cash difference must be paid to Brown's kennels according to our payment policies above. Shipping costs are always the responsibility of the owner. At no time do we offer a cash refund. Any and all replacements will be made with a replacement puppy/dog of equal value, all fee associated with any claim will be the responsibility of owner(s)(see page 1 of contract)

All replacements must be made within 90 days.

If the owner chooses not to accept a replacement within the time limit stated above or refuses to pay the balance of the purchase price, if any, of the selected replacement pup/dog, then the owner shall be considered to have forfeited all claims.

Acceptance of replacement puppy finalizes the guarantee and the owner shall be considered to have forfeited all future claims.

In the event a replacement puppy is unavailable, Brown's Kennels will extend the replacement time period. The extension may be renewed every 90 days (with a final 6 month limit) by written request (non-email) of the owner. Brown's kennels reserves the right to refuse any further extensions if the owner who is due a replacement fails to accept a particular puppy that he/she has requested to be held. If arrangements cannot be made to ship the pup or the owner refuses to pick him/her up by 8 weeks of age, the owner will be responsible for any additional handling fees and charges and the pup can then be sold to a legitimate buyer.

Disclaimer: We are not responsible for any temperament issues that may occur from lack of socialization or training once puppy has left our care. Training is the responsibility of new owner(s) Puppies do not come pre-trained however they are handled daily and socialized while in our care. We never offer a cash refund of any kind as a replacement. By signing this contract you are agreeing that said problems are out of our control and as a result we can not be held liable for such issues or problems.

Rescue: If for some reason you are unable to keep your Alaskan malamute please contact us and if we are unable to take him/her we will try to find them a replacement home. Please don't take you malamute to a shelterContact us first.....(573-774-8258)
